

RE-APPORTION LEFT FOR THE LAST WEEK

CHARLES CROWNHART HAS THE MATTER IN HAND FOR LEGISLATURE.

PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Rock County Sure to Be Affected by the Change Made This Session.

Madison, Wis., June 5.—Attorney Charles Crownhart, former independent candidate of the progressive republicans for the office of attorney general, and a recent appointee of Gov. McMillan to be a member of the state industrial accident board, has been selected by the legislature to draft the bill re-apportioning the state into legislative and congressional districts.

Attorney Crownhart was selected for this task, it is pointed out because of many reasons. He is said to be one of the best posted men in the state relative to political conditions in every part of Wisconsin as well as a student of the rules laid down by the supreme court for apportionment. Lack of his personal interest at stake, making it no object for partial treatment to any one concerned in the proposed redistricting, is said to have figured strongly in Crownhart's appointment to the task. It is understood he has prepared a rough outline of an apportionment bill and will submit it to the leaders this week.

Along what lines the tentative draft will be yet unannounced, but it is thought it will reflect the sentiment of the majority of the members of both houses, that sentiment being to satisfy as many interested persons in as far as possible and give to all concerned a square deal.

Now on the last lap of the present session, the legislature has yet to act conclusively on many bills measures. Among them are several appropriation bills, the income tax bill, water power bills and the bank deposit guaranty measure.

The income tax bill will create a lively fight, and declared by many will not pass. An income tax bill was first introduced in the assembly where it met with rough sailing. A special committee on the subject later drafted a substitute but which was not even introduced. Finally a third draft was made and introduced in the senate.

Opponents of the measure declare if it becomes a law it will increase the tax burden on the poorer taxpayers as well as the rich. Gov. McMillan, it is said, favors an income tax law passed because of this movement being a republican party platform pledge, but is adverse to a law which will add to the poor man's burden.

If the legislature enacts into law the pending water power bill it will adopt a new state policy respecting such property. These measures, in brief establish the principle of state ownership of water powers within the state and confer upon the state railroad commission authority to grant permits for the construction of mill dams and the development of water power. An annual tax on these grants, based on the power developed, would also be imposed.

Sentiment regarding the advisability of passing a state bank deposit guaranty measure is said to have changed to a great degree during the past two weeks, and Senator Owen, "father" of the pending bill, has high hopes of its success. It is understood he has pledged for its support almost the necessary number of twenty-two votes required for its passage.

The law, if passed, would create a state fund of nearly $1,000,000 through a system of bank taxation for the protection of depositors of any bank that might fail.

The proposed food roads bill, the corrupt practices act, initiative and referendum resolution and other important measures have yet to receive their final touches by the legislature. These measures, all republican platform pledges, will likely be redrafted, it is said.

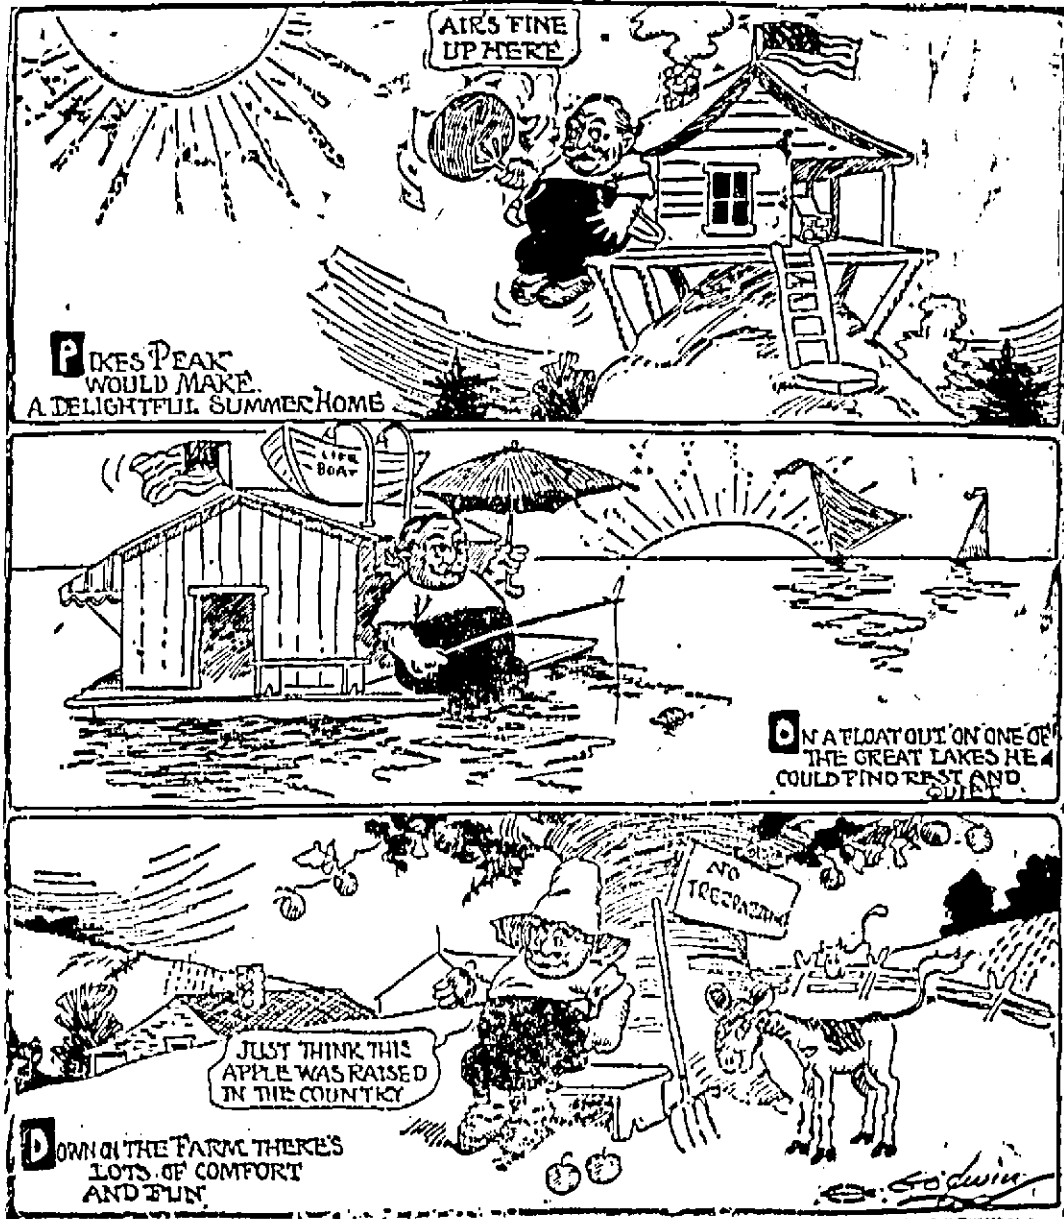

Members of the legislature are anxious to end the session and work will henceforth be rushed with all speed. All committees except those on apportionment and finance have reported in all bills in their possession and these will fill the calendars of both houses from day to day until disposed of. It is believed both houses will adjourn sine die on June 25.

TRAIN STRUCK AND KILLED FARM HAND SATURDAY EVENING

Norway Lewison Employed on Storlee Farm Near Afton Was Struck and Instantly Killed by Northbound Train Due Here at 6:05.

Somewhere between the city of Beloit and the Storlee farm in the town of Beloit, south of Afton, the Chicago-Madison passenger train on the Northwestern railroad, due to arrive here at 6:05 p. m., Saturday last, struck and killed Norway Lewison, a farm hand, who had been employed by the Storlee for the past five or six years. The discovery was made by Engineer Sullivan, who with Conductor Ruggles, were in charge of the train, when the train stopped at Afton. He had looked at the pilot when the train was at Beloit and looking the engine over at Afton discovered the feet of a man sticking out from the side. Investigation showed Lewison lying dead on the pilot. The right arm of the man had been broken and the left leg below the knee. The back of the head was crushed and there was a bad cut on the right side of the head. The body was placed in a baggage car and brought to Janesville where it was taken to the Kimball morgue. There was no means of identifying the body except for an old memorandum book which Lewison carried in one of his pockets and from the vague writing in this it was impossible to decipher the man's name. Investigation by the district attorney, however, brought to light the man's identity. Lewison had come to the Storlee farm from the old country, evidently from Norway. He was about sixty years old and, it is thought, was a bachelor, as he had never mentioned being married to the family with whom he lived. He had, however, told of two brothers, one living in Minnesota and one in Dakota, but as the names of these are not known and he had not heard from them in twenty years, it is impossible to learn whether they are still living.

Lewison had on his person when found a roll of bills, $35 in all, and $7.70 in silver in his pockets. There was nothing to indicate that a murder had been committed and on investigation, District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie decided that an inquest would not be necessary. It is thought that the man was walking the tracks at the time he was struck, returning from Beloit, as he was in the habit of going to the Lake City about once a week, coming back along the tracks. He was seen walking the tracks previous to the time the train came along but was not seen afterward. The accident occurred at about dusk and it is probable that Lewison could not be seen by the engineer or that, had he been seen, the train, which is a fast passenger, could not have been stopped in time. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

OWEN'S SUBSTITUTE WILL BE PASSED BY LEGISLATURE SOON

Senator Will Work Clever Move in His Banking Laws Legislation.

Madison, Wis., June 5.—Considerable significance is attached to the action of Senator Walter C. Owen of Madison in offering a substitute for the bill for the guarantee of bank deposits introduced by Senator Paul Hastings of Mayville. The bill was on the calendar last week for indefinite postponement which ordinarily would be the logical thing to happen to the bill, inasmuch as Senator Owen had already secured the endorsement of his own bill on the same subject. However, Senator Owen's substitute for the Hastings bill indicates an intention on the part of the supporters of the bank guaranty idea to reject the proposition if possible into the next general election campaign as an issue to be specifically voted upon. The substitute provides that the question of whether the legislature in 1913 should pass a bill for the guarantee of bank deposits shall be submitted to the people at the 1912 general election.

This differs from the other Owen guarantee bill in that the latter provides the machinery for a guarantee law which would go into effect immediately upon being approved by the people. The new bill has a fair chance of passing inasmuch as it will not require the constitutional two-thirds vote necessary for the passage of any banking bill. The vote may be close in the senate, but there will be no difficulty in putting it through the house. The regular guarantee bill is still in the senate.

FATE OF MEASURE WILL BE DECIDED DURING THE WEEK

Industrial Commission Bill Subject of Much Discussion in the Legislature.

Madison, Wis., June 5.—The squabbling of last week in the assembly over the industrial commission bill, which in republicans on the floor divided over the question of whether or not the deputy commissioners should be exempt from the operation of the civil service law will be continued this week and culminate on Thursday, when the bill again will be taken up by the assembly. This contest, however, means more than appears on the surface. Not only does it impinge the industrial commission bill itself, which is one of the really "big" measures of the session, but there is danger also to the good roads bill, which will come up tomorrow morning on a motion to reconsider the vote by which it passed the house. With a large membership present, this bill ordinarily would go through by a safe majority, but the fight over the exemption of employees of the proposed industrial commission may have the effect of causing the reconsideration and amendment of the highway measure. This is caused by the allegation, made on the floor last week, to the apparent surprise of many supporters of the proposition, that the road bill also exempts from the civil service the expert employees of the proposed highway commission. Since this statement was made, the democratic minority, which opposes the highway bill, has been taking advantage of the feeling among republican supporters of the bill against such exemptions, and the effect may mean the revival of the measure to the point where an adverse majority can do what it pleases with it. This situation is causing grave concern among administration republicans and reconsideration of the passage of the road bill will be strenuously opposed.

Incidentally, the opposition to the method proposed by Assemblyman Mahon, author of the industrial commission bill, by which the civil service commission would cooperate with the industrial board in the selection of the latter's expert employees, came as a surprise to the Shawano county member, who is the administration's floor leader in the house. On the previous evening he had taken up the objection to the outright exemption of deputy commissioners and had drawn a new amendment which at that time was satisfactory to all concerned—at least all of the majority and of the evened democratic contingent. It is now intimated that somebody broke faith, and Assemblyman Mahon is preparing to fight hard for his proposition.

All of which is another indication of the differences existing among the republicans in the assembly, who figuratively have been at each other's throats throughout the session. In fact, the designation given them by an old time Wisconsin politician, who said there are "progressives, degenerates and retrogressives" in the house, is beginning to be believed by most on-lookers.

MAIL MATTER STOLEN AT GRUNDY'S OFFICE

Thieves Broke Into Warehouse Probably Last Night and Committed Depredation.

Mail matter belonging to Joseph Grundy was stolen from the office of his warehouse some time between Friday night and this morning by thieves, who are thought to have been tramp. Mr. Grundy went away Friday night and did not return until this morning, but it is not known until this morning that a robbery had been committed some time last night. A window in the warehouse was broken and through this the letters which had accumulated since Friday night lay on a desk in view from the sidewalk. Just how many they were or what the contents were is not known definitely.

This morning a man who is described as tall and slim and resembling a circus hobo, presented at the money order window of the local postoffice an order made out to "Joe Grundy" signed by Charles Fleischmann from one of the subscriptions at Milwaukee. The amount of the order was $48.85 and Assistant Postmaster John Homing, to whom it was presented, became suspicious of the man. The man, however, averred that the Joe Grundy named on the order was Joe Grundy of Chicago, but Homing told him he would attempt to identify him. He would have to reach the postoffice to see Mr. Grundy, but the man slipped away and could not be found. A search of the railroad yards for the man, answering the description was made, but none could be found. He was again directed, "You might be safely directed, there is little doubt that the man who presented the money order is the one who committed the robbery."

IT IS TOO GOOD A STORY NOT TO TELL

Janesville Men Buy Some "Imported Stogies" From Smoother Smuggler.

Some business men of Janesville, while visiting San Antonio, Texas, recently, made an investment which at the time seemed judicious. Later they realized the fact that the wisest business deal was the worst of it in a business deal.

They met an alleged Mexican smuggler. He told them of his illicit visits to Cuba, and his adventures, bringing from there cigars and overland the duty. Owing to the fact that he defrauded Uncle Sam, he was able to sell these cigars at a comparatively low price, and still make a profit. There was one brand he particularly praised. It was a slender five inch cigar, with a thick colored and gilt band, bearing a name that seemed Spanish enough to please that most fastidious smoker of imported goods. The boxes in which these cigars were packed bore labels and stamps that indicated they came from Cuba.

The Janesville men believed in the Mexican, and invested heavily in his wares. They started a trial one of the cigars. While on the train one of the party found inside one of the boxes of cigars a card, upon which was printed the words "Manufactured by" of "Pittsburg, Pa." The cigars immediately lost their imported flavor.

The victims were later informed by an expert that they had paid an extravagant price for some wheezy stogies, decorated and boxed for the purpose of gulling the gulleibles.

MAKES STATEMENT REGARDING HIS HEALTH

Milwaukee Man Says He Found Remedy Which Acted Quickly.

John Houser of 1625 State street, made the following statement in connection with "Tona Vita," the medicine that is now being introduced in Milwaukee. Mr. Houser said: "I have been sick for nine years. I have been nervous and run down and have had constant stomach trouble."

"I have never known just what was the matter with me. I slept poorly and my sleep did me little good. I felt tired out most of the time and was always nervous and despondent. I seldom had a good appetite and when I did eat I felt bloated from food and would taste the food for hours afterwards."

"I got some 'Tona Vita' and have taken it regularly. There is no other medicine to equal it. The first dose helped me and every day I have become stronger and better. I now feel as well as I did ten years ago. I seem to get nourishment from food and no longer have stomach trouble or feel so tired and depressed. I am 64 years old and think it wonderful to have got back my health at this age after being sick so long."

"Mr. Houser was a victim of nervous debility," say the physicians who are introducing "Tona Vita" in this country. "His case was of an ordinary one, continued one of these physicians, 'but he did not know the nature of his trouble, and did not have the right remedy until he procured 'Tona Vita.'"

"We are continually meeting callers who complain of nervousness, sleeplessness, stomach and bowel troubles, headaches, backache, constipation, poor circulation, cold feet, imperfect digestion, spots before the eyes, thin, listless, nervous and depressed, all of which are certain indications that they are suffering with debility. 'Tona Vita' positively removes the trouble and builds up and restores the body to a healthy, normal condition."

There is an infallible remedy, known as Lee's Rhubarb Laxative, which is most valuable to those suffering with chronic constipation. It is pleasant to the taste, does not gripe and acts promptly.

The Smith Drug Co. has secured the agency for Janesville and these celebrated preparations are now on sale at that store.

Cartecar

In driving a Cartecar it is hardly necessary to remove the hands from the steering wheel in controlling the car. Its flexibility is not found in any other automobile.

Private owners, ladies and quite young boys experience no difficulty in driving the Cartecar because of its simplicity of operation and quick response to the driver's wishes.

The disc transmission as employed in the Cartecar is the most simple form of automobile construction in common use.

The chain-oil drive protects the chain from all dust, dirt, grit and flying pebbles, it delivers a greater percentage of power than any other form of transmission and drive.

We have models for every owner, from the man who wishes a small private runabout to the one who desires a magnificent touring car.

New Haven, Conn., June 5.—"The college baseball player in the professional league," writes President Thos. J. Lynch of the National League of professional baseball clubs in the Yale News, "is an asset of which every club owner recognizes the true value."
"In the first place they bring with them from the college campus that spirit of true sportsmanship and determination to win which they have learned in college and which is a peculiar feature of all university sports. Their whole career previous to entering the professional ranks has been that of a student of the game and the quality of attempting to transcend the rules and regulations laid down to preserve the integrity of the game."
"I college man is made welcome in this league," said Lynch.

FORT ATKINSON WON FROM CUBS SUNDAY

Local Amateur Nine Lost to City Team at Fort Atkinson Yesterday Yesterday by 5 to 1 Score.

Hollenbeck, Fort Atkinson's star pitcher, did not prove such a puzzle to the Janesville Cubs in their game at the Fort yesterday afternoon, and although they lost, 5 to 1, the Cubs made six hits off the star twirler.

Deononowise and other city teams with whom Fort Atkinson has played, have never scored on the pitcher, and two hits was the record for the best batter before the Cubs were matched against the Fort team. Hollenbeck had a most puzzling set of curves but the Cubs played with the cool-headedness of old-timers and had two or more men on base every inning. They failed, however, to make much hits and one run was all they could tally. In the eighth inning the Power City players pulled off a triple play, Green catching a fly in center field, throwing the runner out at second, and Sullivan throwing the sphere to the home plate. Eckert made the most sensational play of the contest, bringing down a high fly with a one-handed catch. Hollenbeck, Fort Atkinson's pitcher, struck out eight men, and Berger of the Cubs, seven. Berger gave two bases on balls, and Hollenbeck, two, but the latter gave passes to Kennedy and Langdon for hitting them with the ball. Fort Atkinson made but eight hits and had four errors marked against them. Horalek caught for the home team. The line-up for the Cubs:

Hemming, 1b	0	2	0
J. Langdon, ss. and rf.	0	1	0

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, tells the following story on himself, which goes to prove that it pays to advertise.

"Some years ago," he said, "I was lecturing at Columbia university in New York on the formation of public opinion, and because I always like to stir things up a little in New York, I said there was no such thing as public opinion on Manhattan Island. I said that the average New Yorker stole his nose in a newspaper on his way down town and experiences a reaction which he calls his opinion, but which is really not an opinion at all, for that is not the way opinions are formed.

"Then, by way of illustrating how public opinion is formed, I pictured a group of men sitting around the stove in a country store, splitting in a box of sawdust, and discussing the events of the neighborhood. I said that while the opinion that resulted from this exchange of views might not be the best opinion, it was nevertheless public opinion in the sense that each man took away from such a gathering a clear idea of what the neighborhood thought.

"And I added, for the purpose of relieving the tedium of a somewhat dry address, that whatever might be said of the chewing of tobacco it had at least this advantage, that it gave a man time to think between sentences. Now that part of my address was the only part that was published the next morning in the New York Sun, and it was headed, 'Advocates Chewing of Tobacco.'

"But it didn't stop there. The advocacy of tobacco chewing, by the president of a great university, was too interesting an item of news to escape the eyes of the newspaper men throughout the country. The story traveled across the country, growing as it went, until I got a copy of a newspaper published in North Dakota containing at least a column explaining what had by that time become my theory that chewing tobacco bred statesmen, and on the following day the same paper printed a column of interviews with local politicians, who had been asked whether they chewed tobacco or not, and pointed out, by way of bolstering up my supposed theory, that those who didn't had never amounted to anything. And a little while later the American Tobacco company published a photographic reproduction of the original item in the New York Sun, with its advertisements of chewing tobacco.

"That was several years ago, but within the last six months some one in Minneapolis wrote me that the same advertisement was being displayed on placards posted in the street cars in that city, in connection with some popular brand of plug."

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.

The supreme court decision against the American Tobacco company will be generally approved, for the company is engaged in manufacturing and selling a luxury, and its tentacles reach out in all directions and competition rapidly disappears.

The grower, as well as the dealer, is at the mercy of this great octopus, as the market is manipulated and controlled to suit its convenience. This has led to unsatisfactory conditions in the North as well as the South, and while in the latter section the independent grower has been driven from the field, in the former the influence is marked by decreased acreage.

The supreme court recognized in the Standard Oil company the producers of a necessity, as well as the fact that prices to the consuming public were not exorbitant, and so provision was made for reasonable combination.

The tobacco case was handled from a different angle and legitimate competition was recognized and an effort made to protect it. "The greatest good to the greatest number," influenced the Standard Oil decision, but the consumption of tobacco had nothing to be recommended in the way of goodness, so that there was no public unit to be considered.

This is an age of combination and combines, and much is being accomplished through concentration of effort that would not otherwise be accomplished. While many combinations are good for the people, others are bad, and some of the latter control the necessities of life.

It is well for the people that the government has established its right to interfere and control, and while some regulation will follow the recent supreme court decision.

Whatever may be said about the expense of Senator Thompson's campaign, he has never been accused of spending anyone's money but his own. The old veteran has also been a liberal contributor to the political fortunes of some of the men who are opposing him most bitterly. Which all goes to prove that "Politics makes strange bed-fellows."

Congressman Cooper succeeded in securing a detail of regular army men for Janesville for the coming military celebration. It pays to have influence with the War department these piping times of peace.

Diaz of Mexico is a man of parts—foreign parts, just at present. Meanwhile General Reyes has arrived in Mexico to start trouble for Madero, if possible.

Caruso is making so much money in his song bird stunt that he can well afford to carry along a few branches of promise with his side lines.

Chairman Gary of the steel trust is much interested when it comes to handling the matter in hand and his suggestions as to the government owning the trusts may be considered.

Edison says the storage battery is going to eject the trolley cars from the highways and byways. How about that copper wire trust all this time?

While the White House boss will go west to the Iowa fair, the boss of the White House will not go along to give any milking demonstrations.

PRESS COMMENT.

Isn't He Funny?

Marquette Eagle-Star: Chicago's new chief of police announces that "vice must remain within the bounds of decency." Mr. Dooley is not the only humorist that lives in the Windy City.

Let George Do It.
Oakbrook Northwestern: It has been suggested that all the other Georges chip in and buy a coronation present for King George of England. And this is at least one case where the rest of the people will be perfectly willing to "leave it to George."

Couldn't Bear to Part.
Green Bay Gazette: The rebels in the southern part of Mexico did not seem satisfied with President Diaz resigning his seat and leaving the capital. After the ex-president had departed from the city, rebel bands attempted to capture him but their efforts, according to reports, were unsuccessful.

A World-Beater.
Edgerton Tobacco Reporter: Shouldn't there be a limit to the time a senator can hold the floor and the front page of the daily press? Four days seems a long time to discuss a resolution that had no chance of passing. When it comes to a filibuster, we pit our lob against the world.

Whatever That Is.
Milwaukee Sentinel: Newspaper man in New York accuses a crook of separating him from $75. Where did a newspaper man ever get that much money. Maybe he is a journalist, whatever that is.

Helpful Hints.
Monroe Times: Aviator Gilbert shot the eagle that attacked him in the Paris-Madrid race. Motorists who are bothered with people lingering on the cross walks, may feel this to be a helpful hint.

Stirred 'Em Up.
Rockford Register-Gazette: It is hard for Bryan to let the wool be pulled over his eyes and not take the free-trade line to the business. He has forgotten that sheep are represented at the polls. However, his stand on the question was good for a first-class paw waw in the democratic caucus.

One On Champ.

Racine News: Champ Clark must be devoting too much time to his bee and the free raw woolens. He may have all sorts of ructions in Missouri explaining what he was doing when the quartermaster general of the army put across a scheme looking to abolishing the army mule.

Utopia.

Sheboygan Journal: The tobacco trust will be allowed to reform under the direction of the United States district court. When the Standard Oil company also gets to doing business legally this will be a lovely country to live in.

Again.

Pond du Lac Reporter: The Motor Speedway death races are over and now the manufacturers have again announced that no more similar events will be held as they are too dangerous. The public has heard this announcement so many times before, however, that it has little faith in the latest one.

WARNING TO PARENTS.

Some time ago a crank shot David Graham Phillips, the author, and then killed himself.

His friends said the assassin was insane. Of course, but—

What made him insane? His history shows that as a child he was always brooding over things. He was inclined to be morose and solitary.

And then—

He grew upon man given to spells of melancholy—a shrinking, suspicious, self-centered person.

Of course he grew up that way. What could you expect of such a child if let alone? We are learning much more about such children than we know formerly.

The faults of the man in this case were the outgrowth of a neglected childhood. Therefore he shrunk from those he fancied were his enemies and viewed his friends with suspicion.

Now—

Phillips was too busy to take the man at the man's estimate. Therefore the fellow brooded over what he felt was a personal affront and became as to Phillips a monomaniac.

But here is the lesson: Have you a brooding child? Does the boy or girl dislike to play with other children, preferring to be with his elders or choosing to be much alone?

Be careful of that child. The behavior is not natural. If the child is not ill there is something wrong in its mental tendencies. It is natural for the child to be active and to associate with other children.

You may be nursing a criminal or maniac.

You need not worry much about the noisy boy who comes home occasionally with a blackened eye or the girl who romps like a tomboy.

Look out for the quiet one. Of course the child may be ill in body or stunted physically. Find out. Consult a doctor.

But stop the brooding habit. That way lies insanity or mental or moral perversion.

Get the child much in the fresh air. See that it becomes physically tired with exercise, insuring sound sleep. See that it plays with other children.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.

A REMARKABLE BATTLE.

That was a wonderful battle which was fought at Alesia, the ancient capital of Gaul, fifty-two years before the birth of Christ. Within the city and defending it was an army of 80,000 natives of Gaul. Surrounding the city and besieging it was a great Roman army under Julius Caesar. Encompassing it on all sides was another army of Gauls, numbering nearly a quarter of a million. It was the Gauls' last desperate stand in defense of their country. If they lost this city they lost everything. Day after day the battle raged. The Imperial legions of Caesar fought as soldiers do who have never been defeated. The Gauls fought with a desperation born of despair. But vast numbers and brute force could not prevail against Roman discipline. The Gauls finally were routed with great slaughter and their stronghold captured. This victory was Caesar's greatest military triumph, but it was also his greatest shame; for he dragged the captive leader of the Gauls, Vercingetorix, in chains to complete his triumph. Vercingetorix was a splendid soldier and a knightly man, and all the brilliant deeds of Caesar, before or after, cannot erase this stain from his record.

We came from the THE harvest field, where we'd DIPPER been guided by ruthless employers, and kept on the jump, and stood there and drank till our innards exploded, and blessed the old dipper that hung by the pump; that rusty tin dipper, that weather stained dipper, that life giving dipper that hung by the pump. But now, in the blistering heat of the June time, we go to the well with our tongues hanging out, and wrattle around that old pump all the noon time, in trying to drink a few drops from the spout. The housewife's doctors have banded the flask from which all drank when we met at the pump; no more can the boys get a hard water jug on the pump; the trusty old dipper has gone to the dump; the long handled dipper, the mail order dipper, the soul soothing dipper has gone to the dump!

PATRICK M'GINLEY SUDDENLY STRICKEN WITH DEATH TODAY

Veteran Night-Watchman of Janesville Died This Afternoon After Brief Illness.

Patrick McGinley, for over thirty years employed by the merchants of Janesville as night watchman and known and respected by nearly every man, woman and child in the city, passed away this afternoon at his home 723 Prospect avenue. Death came very suddenly, as he had been ill for only five or six days past and at noon today seemed to be in good spirits conversing quite freely with members of the family.

Mr. McGinley was eighty-five years of age and had been a resident of Janesville for the past fifty odd years. During the larger part of this time he was employed by the merchants and property owners of the city as night watchman and his genial manner and kindly good humor made him a general favorite among all classes of people, young and old alike. He enjoyed a large acquaintance among the people of Janesville and there is no one who knew him who will not be grieved to hear of his death.

Mr. McGinley was born in County Donegal, Ireland, and he came to the United States at an early age, settling in Janesville about fifty years ago. He has lived here since that time. He leaves two daughters and three sons: Miss Mary and Winifred McGinley; and Dennis, James and John McGinley. He also leaves five grandchildren. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

Mrs. William F. Kuhlow, passed away Saturday afternoon at quarter past four at her home, 519 Linn street. Death came following an illness of nearly a year. Mrs. Kuhlow was born in Germany in 1827 and came to this country in 1854, settling in Janesville, which had been her home since that time. She leaves a husband and three children: Mrs. Herman Bohling, Miss Elizabeth Kuhlow and Fred Kuhlow.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from the home, 519 Linn street, and at half past two from St. Paul's German Lutheran church. Rev. C. J. Koerner will officiate.

Ida Gebodo, the six months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Gebodo, 415 West Hill street, passed away yesterday. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at half past ten from the home, Rev. T. D. Williams officiating. Interment will be held in Oak Hill cemetery.

NOW IS TIME to buy in Uplands while prices are low and terms easy.

Local Merchants and Manufacturers Will Be Entertained by Visiting Cream City Business Men.

One especially valuable feature of the eleventh annual excursion of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Milwaukee June 5 to 11 inclusive, is the fact that trade service between Janesville and the metropolis of Wisconsin will be closely investigated on the trip with reference to any possible improvement which may be feasible.

Officials of the Chicago and Northwestern Ry. Co., will accompany the jobbers and manufacturers from the Cream City for the express purpose of making such investigation. Traffic conditions between the different cities to be visited and Milwaukee will be carefully studied and where improvements are found possible, and a careful first-hand study of conditions show the trip to be feasible assurance has been given that such improvements will be made.

It is expected that many of the Janesville business men and manufacturers will be at the train tomorrow, having been invited to do so as guests of the visiting contingent. The train will arrive at ten fifty-five and remain until one.

DIAZ LEAVES HAVANA FOR HIS EUROPEAN HOME

Enthusiastic Demonstration Accorded Former Mexican Chief by Cuban Populace as He Sails.

Havana, June 5.—From the time former President Diaz came into the harbor at dusk Saturday night until his ship, the Ypiranga, carried him past the castle on the final lap of his exile to Europe, Havana did not seem to make him forget that he is not still the honored president of a neighboring republic. When the steamship left its anchorage, Diaz and his wife stood on the captain's bridge and received farewells from hundreds of Cubans and loyal Mexicans crowding the small craft below.

The exiled president refused to be interviewed, but permitted his son, Col. Porfirio Diaz, Jr., to speak for him. Colonel Diaz said: "My father is deeply sensible of the wisdom of the restraint shown by President Taft in the attitude of the United States toward Mexico during the recent crisis. He believes in the true friendship demonstrated thereby, and all Mexicans appreciate it and have a deep sense of gratitude. Colonel Diaz made a direct charge that Madero's revolution was framed by foreign capital, naming certain American and English corporations. He said: "How can this Madero claim to be a patriot heading a patriotic movement when foreign capitalists, seeking private gain, give him money to fight with?"

"It is plain to see that certain holders of bonds of the Mexican National railway hoped by the revolution to prevent the redemption of these bonds, and then the railways would revert to them. Madero sold himself to foreign capital." Colonel Diaz thus characterized the Madero party government: "It is like a dog that has found a bone. In this case the bone, worth $25,000,000, is the treasury. Lots of other dogs follow him and hope to get possession of the bone soon. They will fight and the strongest dog will carry off the bone. Madero is not the strongest dog."

Britons Becoming Acquainted With King Since Mourning Period. London, June 5.—Since the period of court mourning ended the British public has been finding opportunity to become acquainted with the sovereign by the constant appearance of the king and queen at various functions. From today until Thursday the king will spend among the troops in Aldershot.

SHORTEN PARIS-TURIN RACE.

Last Leg May Be Abandoned—No Place to Land in Apennines. Rome, June 5.—There is some talk of abandoning the last leg of the Paris-Rome-Turin race, owing to the difficulty in finding a proper landing place in the Apennines. Deamont, however, declares that he will make the flight to Turin, whether or not that portion of the race is officially sanctioned. According to the rules, the start from Rome may be made any time before June 10. Vardine, the winner of the Paris-Madrid race, has sent a message from the French capital saying that he hopes to fly to Rome in one day.

CLOWNS HAVE THEIR DAY.

Many Sacked! My Land! Oh Dear! Oh King Jolly's Coming Here. From out the realms of Fairyland, ruled by the King of Mirth, there soon will come a jolly band of gayest wags on earth, to prove that pain's not worth the tear, that gloom's habitation; to preach the gospel of good cheer and laughter to all creation. Good people listen to their king. Shake off that frown of care. You're wary that somber look so long it's almost frozen there. This world was never meant for frowns, or care, or melancholy; so listen to this throng of clowns. They'll teach you to be jolly.

Laugh, you greenhorns, mopes and prudes. Laugh, you spinsters and you dudes. For mirth, hold your sides and roar as you never did before. Laugh, old maid; we knew you would. Giggles, girls! 'Twill do you good. Little children, shout with glee. Joy like yours is good to see. Carve your mothers, look about and they'll smooth your wrinkles out. That's right, father, keep that smile; let it hunger there a while. To these clowns bring all your ills, and let the can to Dr. Pills.

Great big carnival of glee in this town there soon will be. Clowns from every land on earth will change sadness into mirth. All are masters of the art that brings sunshine to the heart. By their comic tricks and wiles they'll change frowns to wholesome smiles. They'll relieve you of your yoke; make you think the world's a joke. Three long hours of delight you will laugh with all your might. All your life you'll bless this day that they changed your care away.

Come on, father, come on, son; now's the time for joy and fun. Too much work, the wise men say, makes folks dull who should be gay. Come on, mother, get your hat; look the fear out of the cat. Take your children by the hand; old King Mirth is in the land. He'll regale you for a day in a most delightful way.

The fountain of clean amusement will flow beneath the canvas of the Barnum and Bailey circus in Jamesville on Tuesday, June 6. The fifty clowns with the circus have reduced the profession of making people laugh to a fine art. The long program of thrilling and dangerous acts is relieved by the funniest of comedies. There are jesters and comedians with the show from every country on earth. They have made knees laugh. They are the creators of all things funny.

Circus Feeds 1,100 At One Sitting. In the canvas hotel on the grounds of the Barnum and Bailey circus 1,100 people can eat at one time. There are 1,250 regular boarders and they eat three meals a day there. All provisions are bought in the towns visited.

Hot Cloths. When as in cases of sickness one wishes to wring cloth from very hot water, try using a vegetable press and thus save the hands and use very much hotter water.

The Original Kilkenny Cats. It has been discovered that the phrase "Kilkenny cats" arose in the Irish rebellion of 1903, when Hessians soldiers amused themselves by tying two cats together by their tails and throwing them over a clothesline to fight.

Question of Wives. Some men never seem to be able to get on without their wives, and then there are others who do not seem to be able to get on with them.

SIX OF WEDDING PARTY DROWN IN UTAH LAKE

Launch Capsizes In Squall and Only Ten Out of Sixteen Are Saved.

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 5.—The capsizing of the launch Gallilee by a sudden squall on Utah lake caused the drowning of six persons, the victims including a prospective bride and groom in whose honor the outing was being given. Ten others of the party were rescued.

The dead are:
Frank Brown, aged twenty-three.
Vera Brown, twenty-one.
Helen Brown (all children of Captain Brown).
Edward B. Holmes.
Benjamin W. Raymond.
Sherwood Raymond, his five-year-old son.

All of the victims of the accident lived in Salt Lake City.

The launch was struck by a squall, turned sideways to the wind and almost instantly all of the 16 persons aboard were thrown into the water. The boat turned over, robbing the struggling people of an opportunity to hold it. Benjamin W. Raymond's little son was the first to sink. His father caught him and they sank together.

Edward B. Holmes heard the scream of his fiancée, and as soon as he could locate her in the water went to her aid. They went to the bottom clasped in each other's arms.

Frank Brown saw his other sister struggling in the water and went to her assistance. The chill of the water had so numbed them that they were helpless and they sank together.

Some young men of Provo, Utah, who were trying out a new sailboat, were attracted by the cries of the survivors, and went to their rescue as rapidly as possible. They succeeded in saving ten persons.

St. Louis, June 5.—Four men were drowned and three rescued from a similar fate when a gasoline launch capsized in the Mississippi river here. The identified dead:

John A. Dietrich, sixteen years old, a clerk.

August Masturbrook, thirty-five, a grocer.

Charles Totach, forty-two, butcher.

The name of the fourth man drowned has not been learned. The accident is attributed to overcrowding of the launch.

ONE KILLED IN STAGE RUNAWAY

Yosemite Coach Dashes Down Grade But Driver Turns Into Cliff.

Yosemite, Cal., June 5.—In a stage coach runaway on the steep grade between the Elk Tree grove at Wawona and the floor of Yosemite Valley, R. S. Livering of Allentown, Pa., was instantly killed, three women were seriously hurt and several other persons were slightly injured.

At one of the most dangerous points on the grade, the horses attached to the front stage became frightened and unmanageable. The brakes failed to hold the vehicle and the horses started at a mad gallop down the winding road.

The driver managed to hold the frightened animals in the road until, fearful that the runaway would result in the stage with its entire load, going over a steep bank, he turned the horses into the inner bank.

The runaway was stopped, but the stage turned completely over and several of the passengers were caught beneath it.

New York, June 5.—Edward Ver Paul, a legless high diver, was killed in an amusement park in Bayonne, N. J. The cripple pulled himself to the top of a 60-foot ladder and prepared for the plunge into a six-foot tank below, when the ladder wobbled and Ver Paul fell. He struck the edge of the tank and was dead when picked up.

Clubs, Lodges, Societies and Sunday Schools

BEFORE DECIDING where you will hold your annual picnic we respectfully request that you confer with our General Freight and Passenger Agent, Mr. C. C. Shockley, about the three main points.

THE TIME: In order not to conflict with any other dates which may be booked, it is desirable that you obtain an option on dates you may desire before they are secured by others.

THE PLACE: We respectfully suggest the advantages of each of the following parks located on our lines.

Harlem and Love's Parks, Rockford, together present the largest amusement and picnic grounds in Northern Illinois. Excursion parties from neighboring towns coming via the Interurban will be carried directly to the park over the lines of the City Traction Company. These parks were never more attractive from a natural scenic point of view than they are now, and Harlem Park is full of many new features which cannot fail to please, and offer continuous amusement during the entire stay there.

Hononegah Park is the prettiest and most historical spot in Northern Illinois. An ideal spot for camping and picnic parties. No better park can be found for Sunday Schools to hold their annual picnics.

Yost's Park: Another charming park on the East bank of Rock River North of Bolot, fully equipped for accommodating large picnic parties; and having an athletic field with one of the finest baseball diamonds in the State of Wisconsin entirely fenced in, with seating capacity of 1800, 1000 in bleachers and 600 in grandstand.

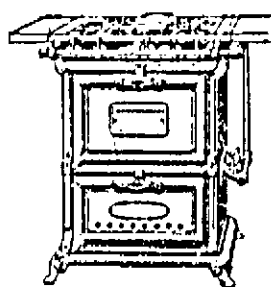

And a number of other charming woodland spots each distinguished for their attractiveness for picnic lunches.

AND RATES FOR YOUR ANNUAL PICNICS: We are making very low and interesting excursion rates this summer.

WE WOULD ADVISE you to confer at once with Mr. Shockley as the present outlook for the season 1911 augments the largest excursion business we have ever enjoyed.

LAYS LOW THREE VICTIMS.

Mrs. Viola Gentlemen and her daughter, Morris Enright, Chicago, Ill.—Out of the labor dispute has grown a feud, the end of which is not in sight. Already 3 men have fallen victims to the cry for vengeance. Vincent Altman, professional slagger was shot in local bar room March 24th. Bernard Malloy, union steamfitter, was shot in a saloon May 8th. The last victim was William ("Intehy") Gentlemen, professional slagger, shot in a saloon Monday last. The circumstances surrounding all three cases are similar. Each received a telephone call, made an appointment, entered the saloon and were shot on sight. The police are making every effort to locate the men responsible for these murders.

Owing to the fact that Gentlemen and Morris Enright had a quarrel about a week ago, during which each threatened the life of the other on sight, Enright is being closely watched by the police. The widow of Gentlemen is said to have made the statement "I am convinced that Morris Enright knows more about my husband's death than any one else."

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

HAVE you—"you" this time means particularly the housewives of the middle class—read Will Carleton's "One Way Out?"

No, I am not attempting to press agent the book. If you haven't, you should at once.

"One Way Out" is the story of a man who is typically of the modest salaried middle class, with a standard of living just above his means.

At the age of thirty-eight this man, with very little luck by and a wife and boy of eleven dependent upon him, loses his position. He has only a highly specialized knowledge, almost useless outside of the office where he has been employed for many years, and when he starts his hunt for employment he is unanimously turned down by employers, who all want younger men or men with some more specific training.

After some horrible weeks of this humiliating and hopeless hunting he happens to find out by accident that Murphy, the man who empties his ashes, is building houses and putting his sons through college. He looks about him and realizes that not only Murphy but other immigrants are making good to an astonishing degree and he suddenly thinks he sees "one way out"—that is, to immigrate to America and start where the immigrant does and take what offers regardless of pride of class. His wife approves. They sell their furniture and with $100 clear start life anew in one of Murphy's tenements.

—rent $3.00 a week.

The next day he secures work as a laborer with a subway construction gang at $1.50 a day. He has emigrated to America and they begin the new life by looking about them to find what opportunities and possibilities are open to them.

Now, with this new point of view, he works back to prosperity again, how his wife helps him, and how they save on $3.00 a week where they hadn't been able to on $30.00, is the rest of the tale.

It is a thoroughly original, thought-provoking little story, but it is particularly because of the part that Ruth, his wife, takes, that I want you middle class women to read it.

Her studies in economy—the economy of thrifty buying, not merely of doing without, ought to be suggestive to every woman who is appalled by the high cost of living.

Here are one or two samples of this:

"Now for breakfast we must have oatmeal every morning. And we'll get it in bulk. I've priced it and it's only a little over three cents a pound at some of the stores."

"And the kind we've always had?"

"About twelve when it's done up in packages."

"They visited the wholesale meat shops and familiarized themselves with the possibilities there."

"Every stall in the market had its bargain of meat—wholesale lots unattractive to the nervous customer. We bought here for 50 cents enough round steak for several good meals of husband."

"We couldn't have bought it for less than a dollar in the suburbs, and even at that we wouldn't have known anything about it, for the store was too far for Ruth to make a personal visit and the butcher himself would never have mentioned such an odd lot to a member of our neighborhood."

These are one or two suggestions of the way in which Ruth made it possible to save on nine dollars a week. I wish there were room for more, but I hope I've given enough to tempt you to go to your library for the book.

The average housewife who gives her orders to a boy at the door or over the telephone, and who buys with no idea at all of nutriments values, it seems to me that Ruth's studies in true economy can't fail to be a thought provoking lesson.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, June 5.—Fashion experts are of the opinion that separate coats and wraps will be prominent this spring, not only for evening wear, but for street use as well. They are seen most frequently, as are the suits, in the Empire styles. Often this effect is obtained by a cord or tassel, where the waist and skirt of the coat join; or sometimes a belt is employed, visible in the back or front only.

Although there is a tendency toward the relaxed waist line, some of the newest models show instead the very opposite, or the elongated waist. Nearly all the most modern spring coats are cut so as to give the fashionable narrow silhouette, but care must be taken to avoid extremes, which are distinctly in bad taste this season. The new coats are made in such a way as to be comfortable in walking.

For evening wear, the draped wrap is most seen. In all sorts of soft, supple materials. The side fastening continues in vogue in these wraps, some fastening at the side just below the waist line, and others as far down as the knees. All varieties of revers are seen, the long, narrow ones, the soft draped and the mitered. Collars include the Nantux shawl, sailor collar, the Cord or fish, and large round or pointed effects. On armor coats military collars fastening up to the throat are much seen. There are a few hoods, and false or simulated hoods are much in favor.

In most of the tailored coats the sleeves are like those in men's overcoats, but in without fullness at the top, cut straight and finished off with a small turn-back or a few buttoned folds. In the utility and auto coats both peasant and raglan sleeves are much in favor. They are sometimes finished off with deep turn-back or gathered cuffs, and are cut wide, so that the wrap can be slipped on or off without difficulty.

Full length coats are distinctly in the best style. A few tailored coats are seen coming just below the knees, but short coats are for the greater part conspicuous by their absence. For tailored coats, the favorite fabrics are Scotch tweeds and homespuns, fancy mixtures in men's suitings, ratines and serges. These are seen in checks, broken plaids, stripes and double-faced effects.

Black satin, especially in the wool-back styles, is much in favor for evening and even for afternoon wear, though it is to be very much preferred exclusively for the former purpose. Taffeta has also some slight popularity. These are seen chiefly in black, but in various colors to some extent as well. Light colored broadcloths, crepe motor, chiffon and lace are also seen for the evening. Unlined coats are predicted, of voile, chiffon, lace and embroidered net, to be worn over summer gowns during the hot season.

Lions and light summer things are still kept in the background, but the silk coat and skirt or coat and frock furnish a happy medium ground 'twixt wool and linen and a costume of this kind is a satisfactory possession throughout the summer. Black satin of various weaves and surfaces is still favored for the so-called tailored or semi-tailored costume, though the flood of cheap models in this material has damaged its prestige, and to be truly chic nowadays a black satin suit must be especially well made of beautiful material and must have some original note to set it aside from the original model. These requirements naturally are associated with high prices, and the woman who has little to spend will be wise to have her suit in some silk other than black satin unless she is fortunate enough to know a tailor, who can copy an imported model cleverly from a sketch and charge moderately for doing it.

Very dark blue rivals black among the smart silk suits, but it must be the extremely dark tone if it is to be in satin, for any save this coruscant shade has a tendency to look cheap in a satin tailored suit, no matter how good the material may be. With some of the other silk stuffs a brighter tone is less objectionable, although the darkest blues are most favored for tailoring purposes by all of the authoritative designers.

One may group under the name all of the satin finish crepes and even the plain satin surface fabrics. Satin de laine has lost popularity with the coming of the warm season, but there are other satins of high finish and rather more firmness than the charmeuse and its class which are liked by some tailors. A silk poplin, very supple and charming of texture, yet with enough body to lend itself well to tailoring, is beginning to make itself a place among tailor silks. Serge, or silk serge, is making a strong bid for popularity and is made up into attractive frocks and three-piece or two-piece models, though the tailors complain that it is difficult to handle.

There are, of course, many forms of the silk serge, ranging from a twill almost invisible to a heavy diagonal, but the serge weave is a medium twill and is extremely good looking either in plain one-tone colorings or in black or color with hair-line stripes of white.

A very light weight moire with irregular and only vague water design is used for silk coat and frock costumes, but not extensively, and much more often in combination with serge, chiffon, tulle or other materials than alone. Tulle is receiving recognition once more, but is seen more often in changeable colorings and quality models reminiscent of 1880 than in more severe and conventional tailored costumes.

Short coats are the rule among the modish silk three-piece costumes and the word short is an elastic term, meaning anything from below or Eton or the little coat ending in a plating or full below and Empire waist line to the hip length coat which is the most generally accepted version of the short coat.

Long coats en suite with one-piece frocks of silk are shown, though not in such profusion as the short ones, and some of them are exceedingly interesting and attractive, while others, particularly in the taffetas, are rather too old and unconventional for general acceptance.

Color is the prevailing note of the latest gowns and hats. With the advent of hot weather, it is likely that white will again assume prominence, but at present it is quite in the background.

Adjustable collars, woven of colored beads in the form of a round yoke, with hanging bead pendants in front, are a new form of the rage for this primitive adornment.

Light colored broadcloths, crepe motor, chiffon and lace are also seen for the evening. Unlined coats are predicted, of voile, chiffon, lace and embroidered net, to be worn over summer gowns during the hot season.

Lions and light summer things are still kept in the background, but the silk coat and skirt or coat and frock furnish a happy medium ground 'twixt wool and linen and a costume of this kind is a satisfactory possession throughout the summer. Black satin of various weaves and surfaces is still favored for the so-called tailored or semi-tailored costume, though the flood of cheap models in this material has damaged its prestige, and to be truly chic nowadays a black satin suit must be especially well made of beautiful material and must have some original note to set it aside from the original model. These requirements naturally are associated with high prices, and the woman who has little to spend will be wise to have her suit in some silk other than black satin unless she is fortunate enough to know a tailor, who can copy an imported model cleverly from a sketch and charge moderately for doing it.

Very dark blue rivals black among the smart silk suits, but it must be the extremely dark tone if it is to be in satin, for any save this coruscant shade has a tendency to look cheap in a satin tailored suit, no matter how good the material may be. With some of the other silk stuffs a brighter tone is less objectionable, although the darkest blues are most favored for tailoring purposes by all of the authoritative designers.

One may group under the name all of the satin finish crepes and even the plain satin surface fabrics. Satin de laine has lost popularity with the coming of the warm season, but there are other satins of high finish and rather more firmness than the charmeuse and its class which are liked by some tailors. A silk poplin, very supple and charming of texture, yet with enough body to lend itself well to tailoring, is beginning to make itself a place among tailor silks. Serge, or silk serge, is making a strong bid for popularity and is made up into attractive frocks and three-piece or two-piece models, though the tailors complain that it is difficult to handle.

There are, of course, many forms of the silk serge, ranging from a twill almost invisible to a heavy diagonal, but the serge weave is a medium twill and is extremely good looking either in plain one-tone colorings or in black or color with hair-line stripes of white.

A very light weight moire with irregular and only vague water design is used for silk coat and frock costumes, but not extensively, and much more often in combination with serge, chiffon, tulle or other materials than alone. Tulle is receiving recognition once more, but is seen more often in changeable colorings and quality models reminiscent of 1880 than in more severe and conventional tailored costumes.

Short coats are the rule among the modish silk three-piece costumes and the word short is an elastic term, meaning anything from below or Eton or the little coat ending in a plating or full below and Empire waist line to the hip length coat which is the most generally accepted version of the short coat.

Long coats en suite with one-piece frocks of silk are shown, though not in such profusion as the short ones, and some of them are exceedingly interesting and attractive, while others, particularly in the taffetas, are rather too old and unconventional for general acceptance.

Color is the prevailing note of the latest gowns and hats. With the advent of hot weather, it is likely that white will again assume prominence, but at present it is quite in the background.

Adjustable collars, woven of colored beads in the form of a round yoke, with hanging bead pendants in front, are a new form of the rage for this primitive adornment.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, June 5.—Fashion experts are of the opinion that separate coats and wraps will be prominent this spring, not only for evening wear, but for street use as well. They are seen most frequently, as are the suits, in the Empire styles. Often this effect is obtained by a cord or tassel, where the waist and skirt of the coat join; or sometimes a belt is employed, visible in the back or front only.

Although there is a tendency toward the relaxed waist line, some of the newest models show instead the very opposite, or the elongated waist. Nearly all the most modern spring coats are cut so as to give the fashionable narrow silhouette, but care must be taken to avoid extremes, which are distinctly in bad taste this season. The new coats are made in such a way as to be comfortable in walking.

For evening wear, the draped wrap is most seen. In all sorts of soft, supple materials. The side fastening continues in vogue in these wraps, some fastening at the side just below the waist line, and others as far down as the knees. All varieties of revers are seen, the long, narrow ones, the soft draped and the mitered. Collars include the Nantux shawl, sailor collar, the Cord or fish, and large round or pointed effects. On armor coats military collars fastening up to the throat are much seen. There are a few hoods, and false or simulated hoods are much in favor.

In most of the tailored coats the sleeves are like those in men's overcoats, but in without fullness at the top, cut straight and finished off with a small turn-back or a few buttoned folds. In the utility and auto coats both peasant and raglan sleeves are much in favor. They are sometimes finished off with deep turn-back or gathered cuffs, and are cut wide, so that the wrap can be slipped on or off without difficulty.

Full length coats are distinctly in the best style. A few tailored coats are seen coming just below the knees, but short coats are for the greater part conspicuous by their absence. For tailored coats, the favorite fabrics are Scotch tweeds and homespuns, fancy mixtures in men's suitings, ratines and serges. These are seen in checks, broken plaids, stripes and double-faced effects.

Black satin, especially in the wool-back styles, is much in favor for evening and even for afternoon wear, though it is to be very much preferred exclusively for the former purpose. Taffeta has also some slight popularity. These are seen chiefly in black, but in various colors to some extent as well. Light colored broadcloths, crepe motor, chiffon and lace are also seen for the evening. Unlined coats are predicted, of voile, chiffon, lace and embroidered net, to be worn over summer gowns during the hot season.

"GOD'S COMFORT" IS SUBJECT OF SERMON

REV. T. D. WILLIAMS TELLS OF COMFORT OFFERED BY GOD
IN SERMON YESTERDAY.

WORD IS SEEN OFTEN

Throughout the Scriptures.—Story of the Prodigal Son A Way of Impressing People With Meaning.

"God's Comfort" was the title of the sermon of the Rev. T. D. Williams of the Methodist church, yesterday morning. Choosing for his text, the first verse of the fourth chapter of the Gospel of Luke, he delivered a very optimistic sermon, showing the many evils of the world today and then telling why everyone should take a bright outlook in the matter.

"The word 'comfort'," he said, "is a familiar one in the language of God. We find it used throughout the Bible wherever it is the idea of encouragement or inspire. In the case of the sending of Jesus upon the earth, he was spoken of as a 'comforter.' My rod and thy staff they were a comfort to me" has always been a source of consolation to the burdened and oppressed.

"No doubt, all of you are distressed and disheartened by the moral degeneracy of the world. You are also probably in despair at the state of the world. But do not let yourselves be disheartened, but come this morning and be comforted. The world is full of commercial dishonesty and greed, but put aside all thoughts of these things this morning and listen to the word of God and be comforted.

"Every day we find instances of the prevailing dishonesty among men in a business way. In New York a short time ago, it was discovered that there was a tendency to use measures which were short and did not measure up to the full amount of the milk men, the fee dealers and in several other cases. The dealers who were guilty of this dishonesty were picked out by the state officials and were made to refund to the state every penny that they had gained by these corrupt methods. Milkmen is a mild word to use in connection with this degeneracy. The words, 'graft' and 'greed' have lost their meaning.

"Last Sunday in Milwaukee there were fifty-five arrests. The crime waves beat against the bulwarks of social integrity and thousands upon thousands are daily charged with crime. Vice abounds everywhere and will may we say, 'liberty,' what crimes are committed in 'this name.' Whole townships were recently disfranchised in Illinois, on account of the wholesale buying for votes and the traffic in men's honor. In the building of the capitol of Pennsylvania, men inspired by greed and graft took over $4,000,000 from the coffers of the state.

"Remember the Sabbath and keep it holy," has never been annulled. There has never been any cause to think that this has gone out of existence as a command of God. But what desecration of this day is going on. And no more flagrant case of this exists, than the saloon. Statutes have been compiled to show that the saloon keeper is annually putting into his business, one dollar, and taking out four. Every man, woman and child carries a mortgage of some physical or mental deformity, traceable indirectly to the saloon and its evils. While traveling in Germany, near Berlin, many people have seen a cemetery surrounded by a wall. The church next to the wall has been transformed into a tavern where liquor is sold, and over the door there is a sign which says that the only entrance to the graveyard is through the tavern. Anyone can see the significance of the lesson written there.

"If the devil were to come to the earth today and hold a conference of all of the dark angels, and a vote were to be taken as to what was the worst and most harmful of all their agents, and as to what should be pushed the hardest, the vote would be unanimous for the saloon and the drinking evil.

"Yes, there is sin in the world and more than I have enumerated. Not there is comfort in the fact that we today, did not start these evils, and their inception was none of our doing. They were not of our institution. It was here before you and I and we have had no chance to correct it. Sin had the start 3,000 years ago, and tracing it back through the ages of history we finally arrive at the original sin of Adam and Eve. In every bend and twist of our nature there is the fact that God offers comfort for the reason that we were not the ones who started the engine of sin down grade. That we were not guilty of this, is the comfort.

"We must all stand before the judgment seat of God, awaiting the proclamation of our destiny and every man shall account for himself. The wicked shall be driven to their own reward and there will be no mistake in the awarding. Nobility will be forced to pay the penalty of the crimes of comfort offered by God. "Retribution starts here on earth, but it does not end here by any means. Some of the gratifiers in Pennsylvania are dead, others are in the penitentiary. There is another comfort to you—the fact that you do not belong to that crowd. This morning is the opportunity offered to come and escape the awful retribution of your sins. Be thankful and be comforted through the fact that we do not have to bear the punishment for all of the sins of the world.

"The church is entering on its greatest era today. The Son of God has not abdicated the throne, and the triumphal songs are now going up to heaven and the spirit of Jesus is penetrating into the depths of our hearts. There is no end to the subject which I have entered upon this morning, and signs of the comfort offered by God are on all sides. The story of the prodigal son is couched in that language, as an illustration of the comfort offered by God. Comfort may come at any time and for all people who are more pressed, there is a hint. "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God."

EVANSVILLE CLASS IN FINAL EXERCISES

Commencement Program Was Given
On Friday Evening With Address
By Rev. Clyde McGee of Chicago.
—Other News.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, June 5.—On Friday evening the class of 1911 closed its high school career, when they gave the commencement program. The class motto "We have crossed the Mountains; Yonder are the Mountains," was inscribed in cardinal and white on a banner which was extended the full length of the stage.

The Evansville orchestra provided some excellent music for the opening number. This was followed by the singing of the commencement ode by the graduates after prayer by Rev. J. L. Taber, Cecil S. Ware gave a vocal solo, which was very well rendered, and showed that Mr. Ware had a voice of great promise.

The commencement address, "The Student and the State," was given by Rev. Clyde McGee of Chicago, and was a scholarly effort full of mature thought, and was delivered in a forceful manner.

The plans of the Evansville Class were thoroughly appreciated and received a hearty encore.

In presenting the diplomas Principal P. J. Lowth reminded the class that this pleasing duty closed his work at Evansville. He spoke of the personal interest he felt in the graduates and expressed wishes for success in their life work. He closed with a graceful acknowledgment of co-operation and assistance from the teachers and the board of education.

The singing of the class song closed the program of the thirty-ninth annual commencement exercises and the graduates are as follows:

Modern Classical Course: Clara Ober, Lillian Spencer, Maud Weaver, Alice Milbrandt, Ethelyn Johnson, Mabel Tomlin.

German Scientific Course: Ruth Chase, Amy Williams, Robert Hall, Edith Hyne, Charles Day, Cecil Ware, Everett Christman, Gertrude Tierney, Elmer Fish.

English Course: Marjorie Wilder, Eva Townsend, Wilma Phillips, Joseph Devendorf, Ella Townsend.

Latin Course: Alice Wilder.

The annual reception took place in the opera house Saturday evening and was very largely attended. The program opened with a piano solo by Paul Chase of the class of '09. A trombone solo was then rendered by Ray Clifford. A reading by Miss Carolyn Hatch, a vocal solo by Mrs. Ernest Denison, a talk by Rev. D. Q. Grunth, a violin duet by Frank and Lloyd Wilder, and recitation by Miss Lilla Lundington, were also pleasing features of the program. Mr. and Mrs. George L. Pullen led the grand march, and the remainder of a very enjoyable evening was spent in dancing.

Guests For Commencement.

Mrs. L. A. Lutz and Mrs. Irene Angle of Janesville, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Spencer Thursday and Friday. They came to attend the graduating exercises of their niece and sister, Miss Amy Williams, who was one of the graduating class. Miss Margaret Wray of Janesville, a school chum of Miss Williams was also her guest.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Campbell and daughter, Hazel, and Miss Charlotte Stagner of Madison, were also here for commencement week.

Miss Ellen Hall and Miss Frances Hill of Janesville, were here Thursday and Friday to attend the commencement exercises. They were the guests of the former's brother, Robert Hall, at the home of J. W. Morgan.

Mrs. Crawford Harper and Mrs. Prescher of Madison, were here Thursday to attend the class day program.

LUCKY ESCAPES IN BAD
RUNAWAY ON STREETS

Rig in Which Mrs. Will Wlach and Daughter Were Riding Dashing Through Saturday Night Crowd.

Mrs. Will Wlach and daughter, living on the Milton road, had a lucky escape in a runaway on Jackson street on Saturday evening, and that no one was injured in the Saturday night crowd on the street was most fortunate. Mrs. Wlach and daughter were seated in the carriage and the horse was tied to a cement hitching block in front of the Grub store. Being frightened, it started to run, dragging the heavy block with it. The animal was going at a great rate of speed when the rig crossed Milwaukee street and there were large numbers of people on the street, but all managed to get out of the way. At the Congregational church corner the horse broke and the horse was freed from its encumbrance, but did not go so much farther. Charles Thompson heading the steed off in his rig and finally stopping it. Outside the broken hitch strap, no damage was done to either horse or buggy.

Reckless drivers, evidently drunk, drove the rig in which they were riding into the buggy occupied by Edward Smith on Milwaukee street, Saturday night. The bugles locked wheels, but the three men in the one carriage would not stop and dragged Mr. Smith's rig backward with them. He managed to get his buggy away from the other rig, but the harness had been broken and the carriage was damaged. The men who caused the collision did not stop to discover what damage had been done.

LEGISLATURE AIDS VILLAGE OF ALBANY.

Passes Law That Makes Valid Their Recent Election.—One Way of Winning A Suit.

There seems to be more or less feeling between the license and no-license people in the Village of Albany, Green County. The forces are about evenly divided. The no-license people at the election on April 4 lost out on what was termed a no-license ticket, upon which were the names of six men to be elected as trustees. There were only three trustees to be elected, under the law, held over. At the same time, the question whether or not license to sell intoxicating liquors should be granted for the ensuing year was voted upon. There was also a regular ticket, upon which there were the names of three men to be voted for as trustees.

The contest was quite bitter. Each of the six men on the no-license ticket did what he could to be elected. This ticket was successful by a majority of ten to twelve votes. No license was also carried by about the same majority. The opposition, or the friends of those who were on the license ticket, claimed that the election was illegal; that only three men on each ticket should have been voted upon for trustees, the placing of six names on the ticket giving it additional influence; that the question of license or no-license was irregularly submitted, the clerk having made no order for the election, and in other ways not complying with the law. The six men on the no-license ticket met and organized and appointed a Street Commissioner and Village Marshal. They ignored the three hold-over members of the Board.

The opposition, by their attorney, Thos. S. Nolan, of Janesville, presented a petition for a writ of certiorari to Judge Grimm, praying that the proceedings on the election be certified to the circuit court of Green County. The prayer of the petition was granted, and later a return was made by the newly elected clerk of the village. The six men who claimed to have been elected trustees on the no-license ticket appeared by Olin & Butler, of Madison. Quo Warranto proceedings were also begun.

On the 15th of May last a bill was passed by the legislature, entitled: "An act to validate municipal elections held in villages in 1911; to fix the terms of office of trustees elected in 1911, and to provide for election of trustees in villages in 1912." The passage of this law resulted in making valid the election of the six no-license trustees in Albany. Mr. Nolan, of course, the terms of the act are general, and there is no doubt that it was drawn and its passage used in view of the situation in the Village of Albany. As the six trustees who represented the aid of the state legislature to hold their offices are no-license men, it is the general belief that it will do the adherents of license no good to proceed with the litigation. Even if the vote on the question of no-license was declared invalid, the trustees would not grant a liquor license; at least, they have so stated.

There seems to be more than one way to win a lawsuit. The present legislature has been criticized for its attitude toward liquor legislation, but it must be conceded that it did a good turn for the temperance people of Albany in passing the law referred to.

At the same time, the question whether or not license to sell intoxicating liquors should be granted for the ensuing year was voted upon. There was also a regular ticket, upon which there were the names of three men to be voted for as trustees.

The contest was quite bitter. Each of the six men on the no-license ticket did what he could to be elected. This ticket was successful by a majority of ten to twelve votes. No license was also carried by about the same majority. The opposition, or the friends of those who were on the license ticket, claimed that the election was illegal; that only three men on each ticket should have been voted upon for trustees, the placing of six names on the ticket giving it additional influence; that the question of license or no-license was irregularly submitted, the clerk having made no order for the election, and in other ways not complying with the law. The six men on the no-license ticket met and organized and appointed a Street Commissioner and Village Marshal. They ignored the three hold-over members of the Board.

The opposition, by their attorney, Thos. S. Nolan, of Janesville, presented a petition for a writ of certiorari to Judge Grimm, praying that the proceedings on the election be certified to the circuit court of Green County. The prayer of the petition was granted, and later a return was made by the newly elected clerk of the village. The six men who claimed to have been elected trustees on the no-license ticket appeared by Olin & Butler, of Madison. Quo Warranto proceedings were also begun.

On the 15th of May last a bill was passed by the legislature, entitled: "An act to validate municipal elections held in villages in 1911; to fix the terms of office of trustees elected in 1911, and to provide for election of trustees in villages in 1912." The passage of this law resulted in making valid the election of the six no-license trustees in Albany. Mr. Nolan, of course, the terms of the act are general, and there is no doubt that it was drawn and its passage used in view of the situation in the Village of Albany. As the six trustees who represented the aid of the state legislature to hold their offices are no-license men, it is the general belief that it will do the adherents of license no good to proceed with the litigation. Even if the vote on the question of no-license was declared invalid, the trustees would not grant a liquor license; at least, they have so stated.

There seems to be more than one way to win a lawsuit. The present legislature has been criticized for its attitude toward liquor legislation, but it must be conceded that it did a good turn for the temperance people of Albany in passing the law referred to.

METAL CHIMNEY IS DECIDED EYESORE

Carnegie Library Should Have Decent
Chimney Erected It Is Thought
By General Public.

The Janesville Public Library building is an attractive looking structure, but there is one thing that mars its beauty. Our citizens apparently do not notice it, or if they ever did, they have forgotten. A stranger possessing normal powers of observation will see the metal smoke stack at once, and wonder why a brick chimney is not erected upon the building.

Why not cease pondering to the saving of the populace for the latest work of fiction until we have enough money to put up a decent chimney? Speak to the members of the Library board about this.

CHARACTER, THE BY MORTAL, HAND AND COUNTRY

"Sure of it," said Sands, holding one of the suspected gems to the light. "I'm not an expert, but I haven't the slightest doubt."

"Let me see them," Griswold interposed. He scrutinized three or four for more than a minute. "They look genuine enough to me," he offered them to Miss March, whose fingers did not unlock to take them.

"We can be certain very quickly," said Mrs. Missioner. She was studying Griswold's whitening fingers—steady enough, but deadly white. It was a peculiarity of the man that he turned pale only in his hands. "I will send for a jeweler."

"My dear! At this hour?" came in Dorothy's child treble.

Mrs. Missioner smiled in a way that said there were jewelers of no small importance in commercial circles who would be glad to answer a summons from her at any hour—that it was not in vain she was known to dealers as one of the most liberal collectors in the world. She turned to a rosewood desk and took up a telephone.

"Gramercy, 9-7-4-6," she called. "The Birmingham?—Mr. Ransome, please. This is Mrs. Missioner, Mr. Ransome. Yes, I am at home. Can you come up for a few minutes?—Thank you," and as she returned the receiver to the hook, she explained: "Ransome is the oldest expert in New York."

"While we are about it," said Sands slowly, "we may as well call headquarters." He reached for the telephone, but his hand was stayed by Dorothy's fluttering fingers.

"Oh, hush!" she said, "please don't call the police," and as his eyebrows went up, she added, "I am so frightened."

"I wouldn't be hasty, Sands," said Griswold. "The newspapers follow the sleuths, you know."

"I'm not think of the newspapers," replied Mrs. Missioner, "but maybe we'd better wait for Mr. Ransome. You see," and there was perplexity in the glance that swept the group, "this is no ordinary theft."

"Not a burglary, you think?" asked Griswold quickly. He had lighted his cigarette, and, leaning back in a cozy corner of the inglenook, was smoking with little abrupt puffs that contrasted with the ease of his position. He studied the widow covertly through weaving wreaths.

"If a burglar could reach this room, I must recognize my household," she murmured. She was gazing into the flames. Her shoulders drooped, and Sands, noticing her weariness, switched off the lights. The rainbow sparkle of the jewel trays varied fantastically the pattern of the rug on which they lay, but the background of dusk rested her.

"And there is no one you suspect?" "There is no one in the house I can suspect."

"You are to be congratulated," Griswold commented, with a smile discreetly divided between sincerity and satire. "And, of course, having such an impeccable household—"

"If I were you, Doris," Sands broke in impatiently, "I'd send for the police at once." His slow logic had carried him to the fact that even now the thief might be on the road to escape. Little Miss March glanced at him admiringly. Swift or slow of wit, the man of action appeals.

"I think," she went on, "Miss March wants some tea, and—I think we all need something to drink."

It was when Blodgett, tray-laden, was thinking his way to the library that the detectives arrived. The hostess and her guests, the footman having been bidden to show the policemen in, heard heavy breathing outside the door, where Donnelly and Carson, of the Central Office, were gripped in a panicky pause. Next moment, a large man with a small head, and another so aggressively average as to be a nondescript, came in.

Donnelly, the big man, turned out his toes as he walked. A charm the size and shape of a double eagle, bearing a buccinate whose pose would have been ludicrous if it had not been impossible, swung from his equatorial waist line. One could tell at a glance he used perfume. One could tell nothing in many glances about Carson. There was nothing to tell.

"We've come up here, Mrs. Missioner," said Donnelly, addressing Miss March, "to find your diamonds."

"Oh, thank you!" murmured the widow, sweeping toward him. "I am Mrs. Missioner. Won't you be seated?"

"Why, h-h-h-h-h," Miss Missioner—Mrs. Missioner—no, thank!—answered the sleuth, with all the airy ease of a highly embarrassed man. "We'll just—h-h-h-h-h—walk around a little, thank—just walk around," Carson, neutral echo of his colleague's words, did walk around. Donnelly, as if, having announced the action, he had done his share, stood still.

Dorothy and Griswold exchanged glances. Sands stared stolidly at the sleuths. Mrs. Missioner, with a persuasive inclination of her head, began chatting with Ransome. Even as he spoke with her, the veteran expert could not drag his eyes from the jewels.

"Now, then, Mrs. Missioner," said Donnelly briskly. "Who—h-h-h-h-h—do you suspect?" There seemed to be a sort of atonement in his breathing. Carson faced the group with an expression that said bluntly he suspected everybody.

"I don't suspect anybody," Mrs. Missioner replied, resuming her talk with Ransome.

"You notice that—h-h-h-h-h—Carson?" said Donnelly, wheeling on his mate.

"These Mrs. Missioner," the expert said, as if waking from a dream, "are the most beautiful imitations I have ever seen."

Sands reached for the telephone again.

CHAPTER III.

A Searching Examination. When the millionaire stopped talking over the telephone, he turned to the widow with an air of finality.

"I have taken it on myself," he told her, "to inform the Detective Bureau. This is no time for Sherlocking. There'll be a couple of detectives here in half an hour."

Mrs. Missioner looked at him admiringly. But her eyes turned to Griswold with a light it would have taken a woman to read, a woman more experienced than little Dorothy March.

Ransome, ignoring the counterfeits, stood in absorbed study of the jewel trays' kaleidoscope contents. That peculiar pallor returned to Griswold's hands. With fingers that bent and straightened cautiously, he drummed his fist.

"The robbery is the more incomprehensible," said Mrs. Missioner thoughtfully, "because of the extraordinary precautions I have taken against burglars. I cannot understand how the thief got to the necklaces."

"Your safe seems strong enough," Ransome ventured. Stepping around the trays, he passed his hand over the outer door and looked at the twenty-four steel bolts curiously.

"It should be strong," returned Mrs. Missioner. "It was built on the lines of the great safe in the Gramercy National. It differs only in size and in the absence of a time lock."

Ransome, staring at the safe, shook his head. Sands walked over to him and, thrusting both hands in his pockets, stood gazing at the bolts. Griswold, smoking quietly in the inglenook, mustered a show of interest in the safe from time to time, but always his glance returned to the glittering trays.

"I wish you'd put those away, Doris," said Griswold suddenly. "With all this mystery in the air, I don't like to see them lying around."

"Surely they're safe among us," she answered, graciously including Ransome with an extra smile. She drew off her gloves decisively and, rising as if from folds of conjecture, rang for Blodgett. "I think," she said, then stopped with her hand on Dorothy's shoulder.

Inquiry reached toward her from four pairs of eyes.

"I think," she went on, "Miss March wants some tea, and—I think we all need something to drink."

It was when Blodgett, tray-laden, was thinking his way to the library that the detectives arrived. The hostess and her guests, the footman having been bidden to show the policemen in, heard heavy breathing outside the door, where Donnelly and Carson, of the Central Office, were gripped in a panicky pause. "Oh, thank you!" murmured the widow, sweeping toward him. "I am Mrs. Missioner. Won't you be seated?"

"Why, h-h-h-h-h," Miss Missioner—Mrs. Missioner—no, thank!—answered the sleuth, with all the airy ease of a highly embarrassed man. "We'll just—h-h-h-h-h—walk around a little, thank—just walk around," Carson, neutral echo of his colleague's words, did walk around. full grasp, he swung the great door to and fro.

"We'll soon know," he said reassuringly, "who to—h-h-h-h-h—yes, who to suspect. Carson!"

The echo crossed the room with whispering tread. Both detectives began an examination of the door. Eyes close to the daintily tinted steel, they dragged their combined gaze along its front from top to bottom, from side to side. Then they shifted their eyes to the thick edge of the door, and their scrutiny bored its way past bolt after bolt until it switched to the inner panel. That done, they examined the rectangle into which the big door fitted as thoroughly.

The big man straightened abruptly. Bacchante's heels came down and her hands fluttered aloft. The catch in his voice, characteristic of him when in the presence of the rich, was brushed out of his throat by a burst of professional zeal. He recognized a situation that enabled him to play inquisitor in a home of wealth.

"Where were the jewels stolen from?" he asked.

"I don't know," said Mrs. Missioner. "When did you miss them?"

Again the widow recited the incident of the opera box.

"Who was in the party?" Mrs. Missioner told him. She did not mention the Oriental in the next box. It did not occur to her.

"Isn't there anybody you can think of," pursued the big detective, "who could have taken them?"

"Nobody who would," answered Mrs. Missioner.

"Did anybody else have the combination of the safe?"

"One," responded Mrs. Missioner. She answered defensively, like a witness under hostile cross-examination, volunteering nothing. Donnelly seemed not to hear her. He was examining the safe again. He passed his hand over the door and its frame again, turned the handle that shot the bolts, noted their strength and smoothness, turned them back, and wheeled on Mrs. Missioner abruptly.

"There's been no forcing here," he said squarely. "It's an inside job."

—Cost Plus 5%

You Get the Odd Change

The new, Regal, "square-deal" method of pricing shoes at COST PLUS FIVE PER CENT, gives the buyer the benefit of many "odd change" prices.

For example, if the manufacturing cost, of any pair of Regal Shoes, with 5% profit and selling expense added, comes to $3.85, you get that shoe at $3.85—not at the old, traditional, $4.00 price.

The Regal Company has abandoned the old-fashioned idea that good shoes always must be sold at "even money" prices.

Regals give the purchaser exactly what he wants at the smallest profit and lowest price at which shoes of that style and quality can be sold.

Prices range from $335 to $585 and are stamped on the shoes at the factory.
